ARTICLE FOURTEEN - FEES AND SERVICES

14.1 General

The Association may from time to time issue a Schedule of Suggested Professional Charges outlining the suggested charges by Registered Members for various types of professional services or may support any such guidelines issued by the Royal Architectural Institute of Canada at the national level.

ARTICLE FIFTEEN - PROFESSIONAL ETHICS AND CONDUCT

15.1 General

Without limiting the obligation of members to act ethically and competently, members shall have regard to the following principles of professional conduct.

- (a) A Member shall be considered competent when s/he performs with reasonable skill and good judgment and in the interests of the public and safety any professional services requiring the application of the art and science of architecture in the erection and completion of structures, their accessories, equipment and utilities. Such services may consist of consultation, investigation, estimating, evaluation, arbitration, planning, design, and the preparation of drawings and specifications, contract administration and inspection.
- (b) A Member shall acknowledge continuing education as an essential component of professional practice and continuing competence; and shall undertake and report activities to the Association in accordance with the continuing education requirements prescribed by Council.
- (c) Except in competition conducted in accordance with the provisions in Article Seventeen, a Member shall not render any professional services except under an agreement with the client, which provides, either expressly or by implication, for a fair and reasonable remuneration.
- (d) A Member shall not engage in anything outside of his/her practice as an Architect which would involve him in such a manner as to bring into question his/her duty of acting solely in the best interests of his/her clients.
- (e) In connection with the work and duties entrusted to him a Member must not accept remuneration from any source other than the professional fees payable to him by his/her client. He must not accept any work which involves the giving or receiving of discounts or commissions, nor shall s/he accept any gift or commission from contractors or tradesmen, whether employed upon his/her works or not. Neither directly or indirectly, as shareholder, partner or otherwise may s/he obtain any benefit from any contract or agreement relating to the execution of any work on which s/he is or has been employed as an architect, unless such interest has been disclosed to and permitted by the client.
- (f) Except with the full knowledge and approval of his/her client, a Member must not permit the insertion of any clause in instructions to bidders or in the form of tender, or in the specifications or other contract documents, which may provide for payment to be made to him by the contractor, whatever may be the consideration, except for duplicate copies of drawings, or documents, at a fair and reasonable price.
- (g) If a Member owns or has a commercial interest in any material, device or invention used in building, s/he must inform his/her client thereof and must obtain his/her sanction in writing before permitting it to be used in works executed under his/her direction.
- (h) A Member must not be a party to any attempt to evade or circumvent, or commit a breach of the provisions of the Act or of these By-laws.

- (i) A Member must not use unfair means to obtain professional advancement for himself/herself, or to injure the prospects of another architect to secure or hold employment.
- (j) A Member must not use improper or questionable methods of soliciting professional work, or adopt any advertising methods which are not consistent with the dignity of a learned profession.
- (k) In order to influence or procure employment, a Member shall not give to any individual any donation, rebate, discount, bonus, fee or commission amounting to a reduction of his/her fee.
- (l) A Member shall not permit contractors, material producers, structural companies, or manufacturers of heating or of ventilating apparatus, to perform any part of his/her services for him without a reasonable and fair compensation. This does not refer to customary shop drawings, or the use of current technical trade information. The Member shall not permit anyone rendering service as above to tender on work in which s/he has been so involved, except on conditions that will assure fair competition.
- (m) When a Member is not responsible for the complete architectural services in the erection of a building with which s/he permits his/her name to be publicly connected, it shall be his/her duty to see to it that the part of the service for which s/he is responsible, is clearly stated in association with his/her name.
- (n) After a contract has been let, a Member must act in an impartial manner between the Owner and the Contractor. He must interpret the conditions of a contract with entire fairness as between the Owner and the Contractor.
- (o) Except as otherwise provided in these By-laws, when a Registered Member receives a request that s/he undertake certain work on which another Registered Member has been engaged, such Registered Member shall not undertake such work, or if having undertaken it without knowing that another Registered Member has been engaged, shall not continue the work without the consent of the other Registered Member or until after s/he has satisfied himself/herself that the other Registered Member's engagement has been terminated, and has informed that other Registered Member in writing of his/her intention to proceed. The fact that the other Registered Member may not have been paid, or that some dispute may be pending between him and the proprietor need not prevent the acceptance or continuation of the new retainer, provided this By-law has been otherwise complied with.
- (p) A Member shall not knowingly make or assist others to make, either a false or misleading statement or an omission of material fact about any of the requirements relative to admission or continuing education, when applying for or renewing membership in the Association.

15.2 Professional Advertising

- (1) An Architect, Sole Proprietorship, Architectural Firm, Architectural Corporation, Partnership of Architectural Corporations, Joint Architectural and Engineering Firm or Joint Architectural and Engineering Corporation, may promote or advertise his/her/its abilities provided that same is in the public interest, but shall not advertise directly or indirectly in a manner determined by Council:

- (2) Any advertising by a Joint Architectural and Engineering Firm or Joint Architectural and Engineering Corporation which suggests that it carries on the practice of architecture, must indicate that its architectural services are delivered through the Registered Member(s) identified in its Certificate of Approval.

15.3 Communication on Behalf of Association

Only the President, Executive Director, or a Member approved by Council, shall communicate on behalf of the Association.
